Working with employers in our service area, we can provide refresher and new skills training for your existing workers, or help you recruit new employees and equip them with essential soft skills needed for the workplace with our Employment Readiness Services.

We will also work with you to help you maximize state incentives to help offset the cost of training for new and existing workers.

Let us show you how to save your company money and extend your training budget! By utilizing available state funds to support workforce development for South Carolina employers, we can help you get the training your employees need, without exhausting your budget.

We can assist you in applying for and securing Enterprise Zone funds and registered apprenticeship initiatives, to pay for training at little to no cost for your business.

We can develop and deliver custom trainings for your business to be held on-site at your facility or at one of our FDTC locations.

Our list of available training topics is broad, but the following are common requests that we receive for training from Pee Dee area employers:

Florence-Darlington Technical College understands the importance of securing work-ready employees for entry-level positions in the workforce.

The ability to assess good work ethic and basic industry-specific skills, before making an investment in a new employee, can impact a company's bottom line significantly.

Through its Employment Readiness Services, the Corporate & Workforce Development division of FDTC provides training for entry-level employees that will create and sustain an ongoing pool of prospective candidates for area manufacturing and industry.

FDTC's employment readiness programs allow business and industry to assess potential candidates for entry-level positions before they are hired and extend job offers with the assurance that prospective employees have acquired skills and knowledge defined by the company.

We work with you to define curricula and required skills for jobs, schedule the training, and provide staff and equipment for delivery of instruction. Training can be delivered on-site at your facility or at any FDTC campus.
